What is the game of Poker all about? Is it only about bluffing or is there more strategy to it than that? Well, contrary to what many people believe, Poker is not only about bluffing. It is about knowing when to bluff and when not to. Sometimes a strategy may be to avoid bluffing altogether, but yet if you insist on bluffing, because you believe that's what poker is all about, then you are playing a dull game. In such a game when you bluff, you disclose more than is necessary. That doesn't however mean that you don't bluff at all. This will give the impression that you have a very strong hand. In such cases if you don't bluff you don't make money despite your strong hand. The trick underlying this game is to keep opponents guessing.

When you play video Poker you wager on an amount based on the five-card poker hand you have. Since you are playing with a machine, you are required to be much faster. This makes the game exciting and the adrenalin gushing. Video Poker in some ways resembles a game of Solitaire. Attempting to bluff is pointless since there are no opponents. There is a considerable amount of risk and luck involved in the short-term game, but in the long run it is your skill that will make the difference.

There are many variants of Poker you can play online. Based on your level of expertise you can choose among the many. But if you are looking for real excitement, you need to play fast games that have huge amounts to be won. Whichever you choose, find the best places to play Poker only at Bingobase.
